WORKING VACATIONS.

HOW MANY PEOPLE OBTAIN A CHANGE OF SCENE, IF NOT ABSOLUTE REST.

OCCUPATIONS OFFERED BY THE SUMMER RE-SORTS TO NEW-YORK HOTEL EMPLOYEES-

THE DECLINE OF THE STUDENT WAITER. One of the many things which distinguish the nd make it seem a season rather out of lation to the rest of the year is the change of occupation which it brings to great numbers of Sometimes the work itself remains nearly same, but it is performed amid surroundings so totally different that it takes on a brand new ect. There is little doubt that this break in the notony of the year's labor is beneficial to those experience it, for as a rule it consists first of all in a departure from the city into the country. Nevertheless, it is in most cases strictly a necessity, and though it is usually an agreeable one, it is certainly a sort of Hobson's choice for the people largest, class of this kind is made up of the waiters and hotel servants in general. At the opening of summer, which marks the beginning of the dull son in New-York, they flock by hundreds to the hore, the springs and the mountains. At those s, owing to the great number of large hotels and boarding-houses, they have no difficulty in securing positions which will last throughout the hot weather, and sometimes, if they care to stay, until the end of the month of September. The wages which the waiters receive are frequently higher than they can command in the city, and in places they have a reasonable amount of time to themselves, with opportunities for seeing country in the neighborhood. At some of the large hotels in this city, the proprietor, while he not actually reduce his staff of servants by discharging any one, allows it to be understood that ffence will be taken if a few decide to take orary leave of absence. This they are usually to do, and when they return to town in the all their old places are ready for them again

The case of the waiters is repeated on a slightly scale with the other hotel employes. The maids, the porters and the large staff of kitchen workers all send representatives to the country, and are often not a little particular in choosing the place in which they will spend the summer. Probably the chef's assistants make the greatest suc-cess of their summer migration. When in the city do little else than wait upon that important personage and carry out his orders. But when they arrive at their country destination they have sudnly become full-fledged chefs themselves. They unce themselves as hailing from the --- Ho tel. New York, and demand and receive wages com-mensurate with their stated abilities. It by no means follows, either, that they fail to give satsfaction; for, from careful watching of their city chef, with a view to this very purpose, they have icked up a fair idea of good cooking. For several years it has been a popular plan ng many students, who, for lack of funds, were ed to work their way through college, to serve waiters in summer hotels. This arrangement is o much in vogue now as it was a few seasons. The reason for its decline is simply that the the classics or noted for their prowess on the ath letic field, were really very bad waiters, taking them by and large. They had not been trained to the quickness and definess with which the profestional garçon glides about, and their movements in the dining-room were decidedly clumsy.

don't think I want any more of them," said one hotel proprietor, with a rueful shake of his "The studious ones were usually too absentminded to pay enough attention to the wants of the diners, and the athletic ones-well, they were more likely than not to carry off a plate of roast beef as if they were trying to make a touchdown with it. They were entirely too muscular for the

Another objection to students as servants lay in the fact that they were not used to being treated as and, naturally enough, often resented orders such, and, naturally enough, often resented orders which they considered were andressed to them as inferiors. There are, however, places where the idea is still sufficiently carried out to entitle this to be mentioned around the special summer occupations. Only a day of two ago an advertisement appeared in a New-Fork paper for the services of a hunder of students from twelve to sixteen years and as waiters in an Autrondack hotel. It is not improbable that the younger pupils of some high seniod or academy, who must have been meant by the advertisement, would be more efficient than the other students at the work.

It is a fortunate thing for the musicians that orcaestras have become so necessary for the enter-this a fortunate time for the indistributions that of summer bearders. Owing to this fact, the demand for their services is about as great using the warm weather as at any other season of eyear. Every hote, which makes any pretensions importance has its regular orenestra connected the this house. In the smaller places this may constitute of only two or three performers, and it ranges the year. Every hote, which makes any precessions to importance has its regular orchestia connected with the house. In the smaller places this may consist of only two or inree performers, and it ranges from that number up, according to the hotel. The musicians are expected to play, generally speaking, for an hour or two in the morning, during dinner and of course in the evening for dancing. Much of their time is free; they have excellent board, and the salaries are good, because the demand for the work is strong. The planist of the hotel is often a woman who earns her living by teaching music in the city through the winter. Her pupils all leave by June and July, and she wisely goes to the country, too, where she can gain strength for the next winter and at the same time continue to gather in the necessary doilars.

Barbers are another class of folk who leave town in summer to pursue their trade eisewhere. The large summer hotels, like those in the city, have a connection of this sort for the benefit of their customers, and must recruit it with men who have had a first-class city training. Many a man here in town has gone into his regular barber-shop within the last few weeks and inquired vainly for the man who has always shaved him. This person has in most cases found a more paying place in the country, but will be back at the old stand in the autumn. Coney Island, Rockaway Beach and other popular day reserts on the seashore furnish employment at this season to hundreds of people who must do something else for the greater part of the year. Many of the men who work there are engaged at other times in the oyster and clam fisheries, or are employed on board the small fishing vessels which run up and down the coast. Some of them, again, are masters of a trade, at which they work when the better-paying summer business falls off.

Theatrical affairs are notoriously dull in summer. The actor finds that prices must be cut unmercivily on his country tours, it being a clear case of haif a load or no bread. Many well-know the usual advertisement is for tutoring or private lessons of some sort.

These are doubtless only a few out of many instances of occupations peculiar to the present season. Where it is impossible for the worker to take an absolute holiday from his tasks, it would seem as if the next best thing might be to get entirely away from his usual surroundings, and thereby gain that certain amount of rest which always comes with a change from an old routine.

BAUMANN BROTHERS SELLING OUT.

Baumann Brothers, who have been in the fur-Baumanh Brothers, who have been in the niture business for sixteen years at Nos. 22, 24 and 28 East Fourteenth-st., have been trying to sell out their entire stock since May 1, but so far without entire success. The firm has been in business for nearly thirty years, and the reason business for nearly thirty years, and the reason why their stock is not all gone now is not because the prices are not low enough, but because the stock was such a large one. The store itself comprises three seven-story buildings, which run through from Fourteenth to Thirteenth-st. These buildings have been filled with a good line of furniture, and the firm is willing and ready to sell it for any reasonable figure. The reason why this is done is that the brothers who compose the firm decided to retire from business, and their lease expired on May 1. In order to give them time to rid themselves of their large stock their lease was extended until August 1, but on that date they must leave the building no matter what the circumstances are. In order to meet the wishes of those who are not ready to purchase furniture before the close of the summer season. Baumann Brothers have decided to furnish storage free of charge until August 1 to those who purchase now. At that time they hope to be rid of their entire stock. stock was such a large one. The store itself com-

A NEGRO SAILOR ALMOST- CUT IN TWO.

THE ANCHOR SLIPS AND HE IS CAUGHT IN THE

COIL OF THE ROPE-WILL PROBABLY DIE, By a peculiar accident, a negro saflor named Walter D. Rooz was almost crushed to death on the schooner John F. Kronz yesterday. The Kronz arrived here en Friday from Boston, and anchored in the North River, half way between Pler A and the Jersey shore. Early yesterday morning a tow appeared to take the vessel to another anchorage, and the order was given to raise the anchor. Captain McDowell was in charge, and he had a crew

As the anchor came up Rooz was the last man in the line, and he coiled the slack rope in the usual way at his feet. The anchor had been raised to the deck, and several of the gang were reaching for it when it slipped and began running rapidly into the water. As the anchor sped back to the water there was a sharp, agonizing cry from Rooz, and it was seen that he had been caught in the coils of the rope. The anchor weighs a half-ton or more, and it almost tore the unfortunate man's body in halves, as his body was all that held it up. Rooz was nearly cut in two, and his body was shock-

It took more than fifteen minutes to release the man, and when his companions had succeeded he was considered dead. The accident took place at 6 o'clock, and it was more than two hours later when the tug W. E. Stone came alongside in answer to signals of distress. Rooz was landed at Pier A, and then taken in an ambulance to the Hudson Street Hospital. The surgeon thought that the man would die. The Kronz started for Boston under tow.

UNKNOWN BODY AT THE MORGUE.

The body of an unknown man was received at the forgue yesterday afternoon, taken from the East River, off Pier 45, earlier in the day, by Patrick Conion, of No. 241 Clinton-st.

The man was about forty-five years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, and weighed about 155 pounds. The hair is sandy, the face smoothly shaven, and one front upper tooth filled with gold. The clothing consists of a black diagonal cutaway coat, a vest of the same material, blue trousers, white linen shirt, turn-down collar, blue-and-white necktie and laced patent-leather shoes. An eagle is tattooed on the right forearm, and the initials "T. C." on the

BLOCKADE ON THE BROADWAY CARLE

There was a breakdown on the Broadway cable line last night which caused a blockade lasting over half an hour. Car No. 653, southbound, be me tangled up in the switch at the Fourteenthst. curve, and refused to budge one way or the other. The accident occurred at about $30 p. m., when the traffic on all the cars was heavy. In less time than it takes to tell it there was a long string of cars stalled all the way from Fourteenthst. to the switch at Twenty-third-st. A repair wagon was summoned from Houston-st. It was found that the grip of car No. 653 was badly bent, and it became necessary to take all the grip attachment to pieces before traffic could be resumed. The car was then pushed down to the Fourteenthst. switch, where it was coupled to another car and taken up to the barns for repairs. As usual, many of the passengers, becoming disgusted at the long walt, got out and walked.

UNSATISFACTORY WORK BY AMERICANS IN NUREMBERG.

PILLSBURY AND SHOWALTER NOT UP TO THEIR USUAL PLAY-THE NEW-YORK STATE

At the time of writing yesterday afternoon five rounds of the international tournament played in Nuremberg had been ended and the results of three games in the sixth round were known in this city. It cannot be said that the proceedings so far are satisfactory to American chess players, inasmuc hastisement at the hands of an Italian truit vender, as Pillsbury has lost three points out of five, and, although Showalter had a won game against Walbrodt in the sixth round, the player, provided he really wins the game referred to, will only have one and a half points won out of a possible six. The other American player, Steinitz, who probably will beat Charousek in the sixth round, as the latter was reported to have a lost game yesterday afteroon against the veteran, is doing well, having won four and a half points out of a possible six. As Lasker, Tarrasch and Tschigorin have lost already one point each, Steinitz is really only one-half point remain in the race.

Of course, thirteen additional rounds will have to be played before the tournament is over, and many changes in positions of the leaders and probable orize takers will occur, changes which might bring Pillsbury and Showalter nearer the top scorers. Another week's play will allow of a better opinion about the probable issue of these contests.

Next week will see the New-York State Chess Association in full swing at the Hotel Ontario, Ontario Beach, Charlotte, N. Y. The principal contest will be the one for the New-York Staats-Zeltung Challenge Cup, for which tournament the present holder, the Metropolitan Chess Club, has entered Eugene Delmar; the Manhattan Chess Club, S. Lipschutz; the Staten Island Chess Club, A. B. Hodges, and the Rochester Club, R. Luce. There will also be a class tournament, and probably a contest for the junior championship between Napier and Marshall, Sussman, Borta and Karpinsk, Oswego. The meeting begins on Tuesday and ends on Friday.

Following is an interesting game from the Vienna quadrangular tournament, which, according to a letter received from Albin, was won by Englisch, the leader of the White forces in this game:

(a) Regular book moves. These two old opponents play generally with great care against each other, and this game especially is a good illustration of strategic and tactical manoeuves.

(b) The Q R P being advanced, 12... B x B; 13. R P x B, Kt-Q, and Kt-K 3 might be suggested, but Black's miention was to Castle Q R.

(c) 16....Castles K R would have been safer, although the chance of a counter-attack on White's King's side is very tempting. In any case, however, we would suggest 16....P 8 4 before White retires Kt-R 2.

(d) Englisch does not fear the advance of his opponent's Paans, and quietly moves the Q R P in order to have the Q R available.

(e) He now breaks up Black's centre, and his inactive Knights will come advantageously into play again.

(f) 23....Kt-B 3 would have given the Kt more scope for action, as he could follow it up with Kt-R 4, or Q 4.

(g) 27...Kt (8 3..-Q would have left his Q R available, but he tries with the text move to force exchange of Rooks, and this eagerness to draw the game causes its ics.

(h) The losing move; although it wants an Englisch to detect the flaw and to evolve a forced win.

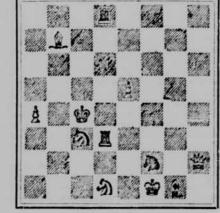

(i) Winning the Queen.

(ii) The only move to save the Knight.

(j) Winning the Queen.

(k) Better than 32... R x Q, as he wins the Bishop with a clear Hook ahead.

ROBBERY ON THE NEW-YORK REPORTED.

PASSENGER WHO SAYS HIS JEWELRY WAS STOLEN. A robbery is reported to have been committed aboard the American Line steamship New-York. Freiman, his wife and his daughter Annie second-cabin passengers, and occupied staterooms Nos. 512 and 513. They were considered well-to-do people, and were well provided with baggage, as well as jewelry. The wife and daughter carried well as jewelry. The wife and daughter carried some of the jewelry and Freiman carried the remainder in his pocketbook with his money. On Sunday last Freiman repaired to the bathroom and negligently left his coat with his pocketbook in thanging in his stateroom. In the pocketbook, according to Freiman, were a pair of diamond earrings, four diamond rings and a gold and pearl chain of quaintt workmanship. The same day Freiman discovered that the jewels, which were valued at $1,000, had been stolen, and raised an alarm. The ship's officers communicated with Police Headquarters from Quarantine and two detectives met the ship, but no tangible evidence was at hand, and no arrests were made.

CARELESS ELECTION INSPECTORS.

THE CITY CLUB'S INVESTIGATION REVEALS GLARING INACCURACIES IN THEIR DATA.

The investigation of the work of the election in spectors, which the examiners of the City Club have been conducting, was brought to an end yesterday. It discloses great negligence on the part of many in-spectors. It also shows that in many cases they have either failed to acquaint themselves with the provisions of the law or have seen fit to ignore them. Four hundred and forty-seven of the registration and challenge certificates were found improperly signed, and many inspectors had neglected to sign signed, and many inspectors had neglected to sign them at all. Three hundred and seventeen individual certificates had been signed incorrectly or ignored. The examiners discovered further that in more than 250 cases where registered citizens had falled to vote, the note which the law requires had not been entered. The "date line" instructions had been ignored in more than one hundred of the records, and the personal descriptions taken of the voters were carelessly and incompetently written up.

Furthermore, pencils had been used instead of ink and acids had been employed in making erasures, cortrary to law. The statements as to the naturalization of the voters were often faulty. Frequently it was found that the books of a board could not be compared in such a way as to establish their validity if attacked in court. The men who proved so incompetent to do the work are being paid for it under the recent act providing $35,000 for that purpose.

Pose.

The facts brought to light by the examiners make it possible to obtain records of the different inspectors, which will soon be presented to the Police Board. The qualifications of any one of the men employed can now be accurately determined in future references.

THE PRINT-CLOTH MARKET.

Fall River, Mass., July Z (Special) .- The print cloth market for the week was dulier than at any previous time in fifteen years. The sales foot up only 0,000 pieces of odd goods, and in the face of a 50 pe ent curtailment the stock on hand increased 47,000 pieces, the total now held here being 1,675,000 pieces. The demand has been light for regulars, the only known offerings being for 30,000 pieces on a basis of 2 7-16 cents for extras. The mills are not well engaged, and the millimen are looking for dult trade until fall. The weekly cloth statement is as follows: Production, 125,000 pieces: delivertes, 78,000; stock on hand, 1,615,000; odds, 665,000; 64x64s, 1,610,000. Last week's stock, 1,628,000. Sales, all odds, 26,000; spots, 12,000; futures, 7,000. Sold for weekly delivery in July, 70,000; August, 40,000; September, 18,000; October, 4,000; November, 2,000. December, 2,000. SELFISHNESS MAKES HIM EAT. Several days ago one of the two tiger cubs in the Central Park menagerie suddenly lost his appetite, probably on account of the heat. The animal beongs to the Barnum & Bailey circus, and considerable anxiety was felt because his mother died from tuberculosis several weeks ago, and the cub has shown indications of weakness of the lungs. Director Smith tempted the cub with all sorts of viands supposed to be held in high esteem by tigers. But the cub would not eat. Yesterday Mr. Smith instructed John Winner, the tiger and lion keeper, to put the two cubs, sepa rated heretofore, together. When this had been done the well cub received a piece of meat, which was quickly devoured with a growl. When the second piece of meat was thrown in the sick cub grabbed it and gobbled it down on the general principle, probably, that anything was preferable to allowing the other cub to have anything to eat. The director says he supposes he will be able to compel the sick cub to eat simply by trusting to his natural selfishness and ill nature.

CONDITION OF THE FRUIT MARKET. SHIPMENTS OF APPLES LIKELY TO BE PHENOM-

ENALLY LARGE-LIGHT RECEIPTS

FROM CALIFORNIA. The first exports of American apples made this Line steamship Circassia, which left here for Glasgow. They were small, but significant. The shipment on the Umbria was made by Otto G. Mayer & Co., of Bridge and Whitehall sts. It consisted of twenty barrels of Summer Queens, which are medium-sized, bright red apples, and five barrels of Alexanders, which are extra large apples of the same color. The invoice on the Circassia was shipped by Charles W. Foster, of No. 76 Park Place, and consisted of fifteen barrels of Duchess of Olden-on account of the remarkably early maturing of the domestic crop.

A member of one of the largest Liverpool fruit firms, who is now in this city, says that the demand for American apples abroad this year will be much greater than has ever yet been the case, on account of a serious failure of the crops both of apples and of small fruits in Great Britain and Europe. He confidently predicts that fully 1,500,000 barrels of American apples will be marketed in Liverpool alone. Should his prediction prove to be correct, the ex-perts, including those to London and Glasgow, would amount to more than 3,000,000 barrels, or more than double the aggregate exports made in any single year in the history of the trade, the "banner year," the season of 1891-92, when 1,450,336 barrels were sent abroad, holding the record up to date. Last year, when the transatlantic crops were scant bergs, which are large apples, of a bright red color.

These shipments were made about two weeks sooner than the annual apple export trade usually begins, were exported. This year's domestic apple crop is expected to be phenomenally large, despite the ravages of worms and other destructive agencies. Josiah Rich, the veteran apple expert for Mayer & Co., says that the crop now maturing will be from one-quarter to one-third larger than the great crop of last year, which would make the new crop from 70,000,000 to 80,000,000 bushels.

The chief features of the general fruit market last week were the two sharp advances in the price of lemons, which are now $1 more a box than they were in the previous week. The increased prices have been fully maintained, and the market was reported yesterday to be "strong, with an advancing tendency," notwithstanding large stocks in store and affect, which amount to 198,850 boxes. There are now on the way to this country from

There are now on the way to this country from Mediterranean ports, and due to arrive within the next ten days, 165,150 boxes of lemons, of which 91,400 boxes have been shipped to this city, and 14,750 to Baltimore.

The pin apple season is nearing its end, and receipts are small. Pincapples have been costlier than usual in Cuba this season, on account of taxes imposed by both the spanish and the rebel governments, and also because it was necessary that the crop should be picked almost wholly by women.

governments, and also because it was necessary that the crop should be picked almost wholly by women.

Bananas are in fair supply and are steady at the low ortees which have lately prevailed. Hipselvis for No. 31 Southest, who has several steamships engaged in the banana trade, compains that the order of Captain-General Weyler readive to the fruit trade has seriously interfered with business. He has arranged to visit cuba and will endeavor to induce General Weyler to reseind his order which compels shippers to have the fruit taken by lighters forty miles to an open port before it can be shipped. The receipts of bananas in this city for the week ending July 22 were 103,000 bunches against 31,000 bunches for the corresponding week of last year.

Receipts of California fruit were unusually small, only 118 carloads being received in five days, against 214 carloads for the corresponding period of last season. Fifty carloads were sold at auction in this city last week, being only one more carload than was sold in the previous week. The fruit consisted mostly of Bartlett pears, many of which were small, end were sold for from $1.25 to $2.5 a, box. The sale of peaches was laterfored with early in the week by heavy receipts from Georgia; but yesterday from 20 cents to $1.10 a box was readily obtained for good California peaches in large lots. The California orange crop, it is estimated, will be about 2,70,000 boxes this season, against 2,000,000 boxes last season.
